Abstract

A method of adding authentication material during printing by dispensing the authentication material in powder form over the articles being printed before the ink used for the printing is fully cured. The method can be combined with the spray powder step during the printing process.

10